1. Your sister has just passed her driving test. You phone her up to congratulate her and say:
 - A) It's great that you can drive me to work.
 - B) You're very lucky the weather conditions were so good.
 - C) I'm very relieved you didn't fail again.
 - D) You deserved to pass after practising so hard. Well done.
 - E) I'm sure you'll be successful next time
2. Your fourteen year old sister is about to go out to a party. You notice that she has borrowed your mother's make-up. You know your mother will be furious if she finds out, so, warning her, you say:
 - A) Mum will kill you when I tell her!
 - B) Does Mum know that you've been using her make-up?
 - C) You're far too young to be wearing make-up.
 - D) Do all your friends wear as much make-up as you?
 - E) You'd better be careful that Mum doesn't notice
3. You are at a friend's house watching TV. You notice that he is sitting very close to the screen and appears to be straining his eyes. Concerned for him, you say:
 - A) Why don't you buy a bigger television?
 - B) The last time I had my eyes tested was in school.
 - C) This programme really isn't worth watching.
 - D) Perhaps you ought to go to the optician's.
 - E) Would you like to borrow my glasses for a while?
4. You are at home, but busy writing a report for work. You particularly want to get it finished. Your flat mate comes in and asks for another friend's telephone number. You have it but it is in the drawer in your bedroom where you keep private things. Not wanting to appear rude, you say:
 - A) It's in my room, but I don't want you to look through my stuff.
 - B) If you give me ten minutes, I'll go and get it for you.
 - C) Look, this report is really important. Can't you wait?
 - D) It's upstairs, in my room, but I'm too busy to go and get it
 - E) Would you mind not me in future, please?
5. You are in a cafe with a friend who starts, yet again, to moan about his job. You sympathize with him, but you're fed up with listening to him, as you know he never actually tries to do anything to help himself. You say:
 - A) Oh no! Are things still that bad? How can you stand it?
 - B) Please don't tell me any more about this, as I don't want to know.
 - C) Why don't you look for a new position, instead of complaining all the time?
 - D) You're lucky to have a job at all. Thousands of people would be grateful for it.
 - E) Look, I'm not interested in your problems! I've got enough of my own.
6. Your friends are visiting your house and admiring the way it has been redecorated. For some reason, they believe you did the work yourself which you didn't. However, you are enjoying the compliments, so, not wanting to disillusion them nor to actually lie, you say:
 - A) Well, I was quite surprised how well it turned out myself.
 - B) Sorry to disappoint you, but I actually had it done professionally.
 - C) Yes. I have made a good job of it, haven't I?
 - D) Well, I must admit I had a bit of help doing the kitchen.
 - E) You don't seriously think I could have done this, do you?

7. You are in a supermarket, queuing for the cash-desk. The woman in front of you has a trolley full of shopping. As soon as the cashier begins to serve her, she starts going back into the shop to get more items. She has done this several times and you are extremely irritated, so you say:

- A) Would you mind if I went first as I don't have many things?
- B) Oh, it's so irritating when you get to the cash-desk and realize you've forgotten something.
- C) When you go the next time, could you get me a packet of tea, please?
- D) You'd probably find it helpful to write a shopping list before leaving home.
- E) You should wait until you have got all your shopping before lining up.

8. A new couple have just moved into the flat next to yours, and are busy sorting out their belongings. You go round to welcome them and say:

- A) I was wondering if I could borrow some coffee — I've run out.
- B) I'd be grateful if you wouldn't play your music loudly in the evenings.
- C) I hope you'll like it here. Can I do anything to help?
- D) What a mess. It'll take hours to clear this up.
- E) I'm sure you'll like your flat but I'm afraid the drains and the heating don't work properly.

9. You are at a party, but not having a very good time. Everyone else is drunk but you are driving home so you have drunk soft drinks all evening. The host offers you a glass of champagne but you have to refuse it, saying:

- A) I don't suppose there's any red wine instead?
- B) I'd love to, but I'm afraid I've got the car with me.
- C) I'm sorry, I never touch alcohol.
- D) Well, I'll just have one, thanks, but then I really have to leave.
- E) Sorry. I have to drive back so I'd better not drink too much.

10. You are on holiday in a foreign country, exploring an ancient monument. A mysterious staircase makes you very curious but there is a sign next to it in a language you don't understand. You want the guide to explain it, and say:

- A) Excuse me, does this sign say no entry?
- B) I'm just going to see what's up here.
- C) This sign looks official so I'd better not go past it.
- D) Do you know where this staircase leads to?
- E) Look at this sign. Which language is it in?

11. You have gone back, after several years to visit a former teacher of yours who was also a friend of your family's. Before catching up on all the gossip, you want to tell her how well she is looking, and say:

- A) What happened about that scandal in school?
- B) Teaching must be a hard job; it's put years on you.
- C) You know, you haven't changed a bit. You look exactly as I remember.
- D) It's wonderful to see you again after all this time.
- E) My mother asked me to give you her best wishes.

12. You are in the supermarket. It is very busy and you are waiting at the delicatessen. The old lady in front of you is about to be served when another customer pushes in and demands the assistant's attention. You don't think this is fair, and say :

- A) I don't mean to be rude, but I think it was my turn next.
- B) It's annoying having to wait in a queue when you're in a hurry, isn't it?
- C) If you'd asked, I would have let you in behind me.
- D) Excuse me, I think this lady was just going to buy something.
- E) I can't blame you, for I was about to do the same myself.

13. You regularly visit your favorite restaurant and always have fish soup. This time however, the soup is not on the menu. You want to find out the reason they've stopped serving it and say to the waiter:

- A) Can I have the tomato soup instead, please?
- B) Fish soup is very healthy. I think you should put it back on the menu.
- C) The price of fish has gone up recently, hasn't it?
- D) If you don't serve it any more, could I have the recipe?
- E) I thought the soup was delicious. Wasn't it popular enough with the other customers?

14. You are on a very long train journey and have fallen asleep. You wake up, but not knowing where the train is, you turn to the person next to you and say:

- A) How long does this journey take exactly?
- B) Have I been asleep for a long time?
- C) Are you sure I haven't missed my stop?
- D) What's the final destination of this train?
- E) Do you know which station we come to next?

15. You and your young son, Peter, are visiting your elderly aunt. She is out of the room when your son accidentally breaks a vase. Knowing that your aunt will probably be very cross with your son, you decide to take the blame yourself, and say to her :

- A) It was very careless of me — let me buy you a new one.
- B) Don't worry I'm sure it wasn't very expensive.
- C) It wasn't Peter's fault. The vase was too near the edge of the table.
- D) I didn't mean to let Peter break it so please don't be angry with him.
- E) Children are often clumsy at Peter's age but they can't help it.

16. You have just moved into your new house, but the removal men have put all the bedroom furniture into, the room you intended to be the lounge, even though you clearly explained what you wanted. You are fed up with their inefficiency and say crossly:

- A) This isn't the lounge. How dare you disobey my orders!
- B) Rearrange the furniture in this room quickly or I'll tell your boss.
- C) Why didn't you listen properly? You'll just have to move it all into the other room.
- D) I'm afraid I really wanted the bedroom furniture in this room.
- E) I'm paying a lot of money for this and I'd be grateful if you do as I say.

17. You are at the coach station and about to leave on holiday but you can't find your ticket in panic you turn to your friend and say:

- A) What have you done with my ticket?
- B) Never mind, I'll just have to buy another one.
- C) I've lost my ticket. Can I have yours?
- D) I can't think where else to look. Whatever shall I do?
- E) Honestly, I'm hopeless. I'm forever losing things.

18. You are having a dinner party tonight for quite a lot of people. Your friend has just rung to say she can't come. However, you think she is just nervous about meeting new people, so, trying to persuade her gently, you say:

- A) I know you're no good at talking to people, so you could just sit and listen.
- B) Oh, do come. Honestly, everyone else is really nice and you've already met a couple of them.
- C) I thought we were friends — you could at least make an effort.
- D) I'd like you to come, but I know you don't really want to.
- E) You know, shyness is a problem you should confront, not hide from

19. You are in the supermarket. A woman is trying to take a product from the top shelf but can't quite reach. An assistant is standing very near but is ignoring her. Reaching for it yourself for her, you say loudly, hoping to embarrass the assistant:

- A) I've often found that the staff here aren't very helpful.
- B) If I were you, I wouldn't buy that product.
- C) It must be awful being so short
- D) It's ridiculous having such high shelves.
- E) You shouldn't be ashamed of asking for help, you know.

20. You are walking through a beautiful wood near your house when your friend discovers a sign saying the land is going to be sold and have houses built on it. You are determined to prevent this if possible and say:

- A) That's a real shame — I've been coming here since I was a child.
- B) This is terrible! Someone should do something to stop them.
- C) Don't worry. I'm pretty sure this area is protected by law.
- D) They can't do this! Let's start by writing to the newspapers.
- E) The whole town will be furious when they find out.

21. Although you don't like animals, you are walking your friend's beloved dog as a favor. Unfortunately it tries to attack a passer-by. You are upset, but don't wish to accept any responsibility for the dog, so you say;

- A) I hate this dog. He's always doing things like this.
- B) Oh I'm so sorry. I should have controlled him more firmly.
- C) Are you alright? He doesn't belong to me, but I do apologize on behalf of his owner.
- D) He's not my dog, 'but you can have him, if you want.
- E) I'm sorry, but you should have kept out of the way. I can hardly manage him.

22. You tell your friend that you are going to see a particular film at the cinema that evening. She, apparently, has already seen it and starts to tell you the plot. Not wishing to have your evening spoiled, you say:

- A) It doesn't sound as good as I'd hoped.
- B) Why don't you come with me and we can watch it together?
- C) Don't tell me! I think I can guess what happens!
- D) What did you really think of the film?
- E) Don't say any more! I'll find out for myself.

23. Your parents have gone away for the weekend and all your friends have come round for a large party. The house is in a complete mess, and your parents have just phoned to say they'll be home in half an hour. You know they'll be furious if they find out what's going on, so you turn to everyone and say:

- A) Quick! Everyone go home! Maybe my parents won't notice.
- B) Everybody stop dancing and start tidying up before it's too late!
- C) We've only got thirty minutes left, so make the most of it!
- D) Turn the music down and hopefully they won't suspect a thing!
- E) Let's turn the lights off and pretend no one is at home.

24. You are on a car journey. Your friend is driving and you are navigating. You are driving through the busy centre of a strange city and your friend is getting very tense and impatient with map reading. Wanting to pacify and reassure her you say

- A) Just calm down! I don't know what you're getting so upset about.
- B) If you didn't panic so much, the journey would be a lot more pleasant.
- C) Map-reading is quite tricky you know. I mean, you've got the easier job,
- D) Look, do you want me to drive? You're obviously not used to city traffic conditions.
- E) It's alright, I know exactly where we are. We'll be onto the motorway soon.

25. You are baby-sitting for a friend. You have promised to show the children a video after they've eaten their meal. However, during their meal they start misbehaving and playing with their food so, warning them, you say:

- A) If you don't eat this properly, you won't see the film!
- B) I'm sure your mother doesn't allow you to do this.
- C) Be quiet and eat your dinner without playing with it!
- D) I'm looking forward to the video, aren't you?
- E) I won't come and baby-sit again if you aren't nice!

26. You are on holiday, visiting an ancient monument. You are walking around when you see a couple of other tourists wandering onto a forbidden, dangerous area of the site. They obviously didn't see the sign. You want to warn them and say:

- A) It's people like you who cause damage by going onto places that aren't ready yet.
- B) Excuse me. I don't think we're allowed on that part because it's too unstable.
- C) Hey! Can't you read? You know you can't go over there.
- D) If you ignore the danger signs, you can't blame anyone if you get hurt.
- E) Excuse me! Can I ask you not to walk there? We're still trying to make it safe.

27. You have just got your holiday photos developed but there's been a - mix-up and you have been given someone's beautiful wedding photographs instead. You want yours! You go back to the shop and say:

- A) I wonder if you'd mind swapping these photos for some other ones.
- B) Everyone in the family wants copies of them.
- C) These aren't quite right. Could you develop them again, please?
- D) You've made a mistake. My photos were of the seaside.
- E) Look, aren't these wonderful — what a lovely bride!

28. You are at a wedding. The service is very long and your young children are getting restless and, to your horror, starting to whisper loudly. When the music starts, you turn to them and quietly beg them:

- A) I won't bring you again if you don't start behaving properly.
- B) How can you be bored or fed up on such a happy occasion?
- C) Please try to keep quiet — it'll be over soon and then you can go outside.
- D) I'm getting a bit bored myself, actually, so we'll go in a couple of minutes.
- E) Excuse me, would you mind being quiet? I'm trying to listen.

29. Your mother has just announced that your grandparents are coming to stay next week. Your house is very small, so it'll be a squash, but you're delighted and say:

- A) Great, it's always fun when they come to visit, however little room there is.
- B) Well, I hope that doesn't mean they're going to sleep in my room!
- C) So soon! Their last visit wasn't all that long ago.
- D) Brilliant! I'll be away all that week!
- E) They're welcome to visit, but do we really have enough room?

30. You walk out of your house and just near the step you find a purse full of money. There is no sign of the owner so you take it inside and, wondering what to do with it, say to your mum:

- A) Look! I've just found that purse you lost.
- B) I suppose I should take it to the police station this afternoon.
- C) People are so careless — the owner doesn't deserve to get it back.
- D) Do you think I should phone the owner and tell him?
- E) Do you know who this purse belongs to?

31. As your elderly but active mother gets older, she is becoming less able to look after her large house. You are sure she needs help, but she is fiercely independent and very sensitive to any implication that she can't cope. Making your suggestion gently and tactfully, you say:

- A) You know, a lot of old people would be grateful for help, so you are being a bit unreasonable.
- B) I know you don't want a cleaner, so I'll have to come in every day and help you myself.
- C) I'm sure you think you can cope but you must accept that a cleaner would do a better job.
- D) Why don't you come and stay with me? Then you wouldn't have any housework to do at all.
- E) Perhaps if someone came to do just the cleaning jobs, then you would have more time for your hobbies.

32. One of your friends has always wanted to try bungee jumping. Now the opportunity has finally come. Just as your friend is about to jump, he turns to you and tells you that he is afraid and doesn't want to do it after all. Personally, you would never bungee jump, but your friend has wanted to do it for such a long time. You encourage him forcefully, saying:

- A) It's a pity because you really wanted to do it.
- B) You shouldn't feel bad about being too afraid.
- C) I wouldn't do it if you paid me a million dollars.
- D) If you don't do it, you'll never forgive yourself.
- E) I wish you'd thought of that before we came here.

33. When you woke up this morning, the weather was beautiful, so you and your family decided to go to the beach. However, now that you are ready to go, there are grey clouds building up in the sky and it's looking as if it might rain. Everyone is feeling a bit discouraged, but knowing how changeable the weather is in your part of the world, you say optimistically:

- A) I can't believe it was so beautiful less than an hour ago.
- B) I don't think it'll be much fun sitting in the rain.

- C) Why does this happen whenever we want to go out?
- D) Those clouds will be gone by the time we get there.
- E) I think we should stay at home and play cards instead.

34. You've just returned from a shopping trip, when you realise that you've lost your bag. You're in a complete panic as there are many important things inside it. You try phoning the last shop you were in to see if you left it in the changing room there. When the manageress tells you that they have got it, you say with a sigh of relief:

- A) Oh, that's annoying. I'll have to come back into town to fetch it.
- B) Everything had better still be in that bag, or there'll be trouble.
- C) Thank goodness, it's still there. I was afraid I'd never see it again.
- D) You must have known it was my bag. Why didn't you call me?
- E) Thanks so much for calling. I hadn't even realised that I'd lost it.

35. You're driving on the highway with a friend. Suddenly, a sports car comes out of nowhere at a very high speed and overtakes you, narrowly missing an oncoming car. Alarmed that the driver could have caused an accident, you turn to your passenger and say irately:

- A) You're a road hog! Go back to driving school and learn how to drive properly.
- B) Did you see that incredible car? I'd love to buy myself one of those some day.
- C) Wow, that was fast! He must be trying to get to an appointment on time.
- D) I'm so sorry, but there was nothing I could have done to prevent the accident.
- E) What an idiot! He's going to kill himself or someone else with that reckless driving.

36. You've been having problems with your car. You take it to a garage and they give you a very high quote for doing the work, so you decide to try to repair it yourself. You spend the whole weekend working on the car, but eventually you manage to sort out the problem. Afterwards, you tell your father what happened, saying proudly:

- A) I wish I could afford to buy a car that doesn't need repairing all the time.
- B) I wasted my whole weekend repairing the car and now I'm exhausted.
- C) If I'd known how much work it was going to be, I wouldn't have done it.
- D) I fixed it all by myself and didn't have to pay the mechanic a penny.
- E) Can you have a look at my car and tell me what's wrong?

37. One of your classmates is very upset because she's received a low mark for a composition she wrote. She is convinced that this is because the teacher, Mrs Bell, doesn't like her, and she wants to approach the principal about the matter. You've read her essay, and you think that the mark is fair. While trying not to hurt her feelings, you reason with her, saying:

- A) I think you were really lucky to get the mark you did, because your essay is full of basic mistakes.
- B) Even if Mrs Bell didn't like you, I don't think she would let her feelings influence the mark she gave.
- C) If I were you, I would go and see the principal immediately and let her mark your essay instead.
- D) The real problem with Mrs Bell is that she always gives higher marks to her favourite students.
- E) Why don't you just go and speak to Mrs Bell privately and ask her why she is treating you so badly?

38. You have a new colleague at work. You've been given the task of training him and are trying to show him how to use one of the computer programs he needs to know. Although you've just explained the process several times, he is clearly still very confused. It's taking up a lot of your time, but you say patiently:

- A) Don't get in a panic. I'll go through it all again very slowly.
- B) If you think this is difficult, you're going to have a lot of problems.
- C) Why didn't they hire someone with a background in computers?
- D) You should have got this by now. It's not very complicated.
- E) Perhaps you should just practise on your own — I've got work to do.

39. Your brother has recently written an exam. Before the exam, he was leading a busy social life instead of studying. Now he has just learnt that he has failed the exam. When your mother tells you this, you respond unsympathetically, saying:

- A) It serves him right. He shouldn't have gone to that party the night before the exam.
- B) I can't believe he's failed. He was so well prepared before he took the exam.
- C) What a shame! He is so clever that I'm sure he could have passed the exam easily.
- D) I hope he isn't feeling too bad about it. Exams aren't the most important things in life.
- E) I feel really sorry for him, even though I know he should have worked much harder.

40. You are baby-sitting the neighbours' child, Tim, for the first time. After you've been there for about an hour, Tim says that he doesn't feel well, and he looks as if he may have a fever. You call his parents on their mobile phone, and taking care not to alarm them, say:

- A) You've got to come back, I'm afraid, as I'm not prepared to look after a sick child.
- B) I don't want to bother you, but could you tell me what your doctor's number is, please?
- C) Please come home immediately and look after Tim, because he's feeling terribly ill.
- D) I'm sorry to disturb you, but Tim is feeling slightly unwell and I'm not sure what to do.
- E) If you were good parents, you would take care of your sick child instead of going out.
