Oral history, accounts based on interviews with those who have taken part in historical events, is as old as the study of history itself. In the 5th century BC, the historians Herodotus and Thucydides, lacking the written sources on which modern historians have come to rely, questioned the survivors of the wars they described. In traditional societies without either a written language or widespread literacy, oral tradition passed down from generation to generation often serves as a substitute for written historical accounts.

55- The passage tells us that oral history ____.

- A) was used by Herodotus and Thucydides very often
- B) is information obtained from participants in the events that are being recorded
- C) is a recent invention, based on modern interviewing techniques
- D) should only be done if one lacks written sources
- E) is not reliable as it is based on the person's own interpretations

56- We can infer from the passage that Herodotus and Thucydides ____.

- A) were illiterate, and so could not use written sources
- B) preferred talking to people who had taken part in wars to studying the written sources
- C) were the only historians in the 5th century BC
- D) did not write, but passed down their accounts orally
- E) created oral histories of the wars they described

57- According to the passage, in societies lacking a written language or with a widespread illiteracy, ____.

- A) oral history often takes the place of written history
- B) survivors of wars are greatly respected by the other members
- C) oral traditions contain far more information than written accounts do
- D) those who took part in wars are questioned by historians very often
- E) there are no reliable accounts of history

Opinion polls have been developed largely since the 1930s as a scientific way of learning what large numbers of people think about various topics. They are used extensively in the fields of politics and marketing. Many polling companies provide political candidates and manufacturers with information that shows how they are viewed by members of the public. This information is often used in developing advertising programs and planning the strategy of political campaigns. The results of these private polls, either in politics or in marketing are usually confidential and not available to the public.

58- Opinion polls ____.

- A) are the only way of finding out what people think
- B) sometimes fail to reflect the actual opinion of the public
- C) are hardly ever used because of the difficulty and expense involved
- D) are a way to learn people's opinion on different subjects
- E) are only used in politics and marketing

59- It's clear from the passage that polling companies ____.

- A) are of greater importance to political candidates than to advertisers
- B) regularly publish the results of their surveys
- C) work for scientific reasons rather than for money
- D) should be strictly regulated as they deal with very sensitive information
- E) do not always publicise the results of the polls

60- One can conclude from the passage that, in making their plans, politicians and manufacturers ____.

- A) have to make use of various methods
- B) who do not make use of the results of polls are likely to fail
- C) are interested in knowing what the public think about them
- D) have no other choice but to rely on polling
- E) should work hand in hand in order to succeed

When people think about sources of water pollution, they do not usually think of aquariums. However, as the demand grows for fish to eat, the number of aquariums is increasing. In some areas, they are beginning to create environmental problems. In fact, when fish are in their natural environment, they do not pollute. But in aquariums, the situation is not natural. There are usually lots of fish in very little water. This means that the water must be changed very often. And each time it is changed, the dirty water must be thrown away. It is usually poured directly from the aquariums into a river or the ocean. The chemical balance of the river or coastline is changed by this dirty water. And the plants and animals living there may suffer.

67- It is stated in the passage that

- A) another water pollutant is the pools where fish are fed artificially.
- B) polluted water is dangerous for the fish in the aquarium.
- C) aquariums at home are used to feed fish to eat in need.
- D) feeding fish in the aquariums is a hobby.
- E) one must change the water in the aquarium weekly.

68- One can infer from the passage that

- A) we can feed more fish in the aquarium than the river.
- B) fish fed in the aquariums sometimes poison the people because they eat artificial chemical food.
- C) if people change the natural balance, it, any case, creates problems in the environment.
- D) the water in the aquarium must be changed as soon as possible.
- E) dead fish in the river pollute the rivers and lakes.

69- We can conclude from the passage that

- A) chemicals poured from the aquariums don't affect the rivers and lakes.
- B) plants and fish in the aquariums may suffer from the chemicals.
- C) pollutants in the water must be filtered before we drink it from the taps.
- D) it is difficult to disinfect the chemical pollutants in the aquariums.
- E) water poured from the aquariums change the chemical balance of the river and the coastline.

In the United States and in many European countries, there is a serious problem. What should be done with the garbage? There is no more room for garbage dumps. It is not possible to burn garbage, because that pollutes the air. So the governments are looking for ways to reduce the amount of garbage that is produced. One way to do this is to recycle as much as possible. Not all kinds of garbage can be recycled, of course. The easiest things to recycle are probably glass and paper. However, one can also recycle many kinds of metal and plastic. Many cities now require people to recycle these materials. The people must put them separately from the regular garbage. Then special trucks take them away and bring them to private companies. These companies will buy them and use them again.

70- One can understand from the passage that

- A) private companies collect the recycled materials and reuse them
- B) you can collect the garbage in containers and store them in the soil.
- C) many city wastes are sent to the seas, oceans and rivers.
- D) recycling is a god solution for the garbage but glasses and PVC must be cleaned carefully.
- E) recycling is the only way to reduce the amount of garbage.

71- We can infer from the passage that

- A) garbage is the most serious problem in the USA and Europe.
- B) garbage pollutes the air we breath.
- C) plastic is mixed into the soil in more than half a century
- D) residents try to find solution to the garbage near their homes.
- E) glass, paper, plastic and metals must be collected in separate containers

72- The author states in the passage that

- A) garbage dumps not only pollutes the air but the water as well.
- B) the serious problem about garbage is that there is not enough place for garbage dumps.
- C) the only solution is to burn the garbage.
- D) to recycle the paper and glass is easy but metals and plastics not.
- E) many cities encourage the companies to recycle these materials.

Holiday beaches are like huge barbecues where people lie like burgers on a grill. Many people do not realise the dangers of baking themselves in the sun. By following some sensible advice, holiday makers can achieve a perfect tan, yet avoid such dangers as sunburns and even skin cancer. The sun is at its strongest between 11 am and 3 pm, so sit in the shade at this time. Babies should be kept out of direct sun, and children should wear sun block and a hat. Remember to reapply sun cream regularly, particularly after swimming. Sunglasses are not just a fashion accessory. They provide vital protection from the sun's rays. Never wear sunglasses with cheap lenses; they do more harm than good. Summer is a great season, but be sensible!

73- We can infer from the passage that

- A) summer season can be harmful if you don't take necessary precautions.
- B) people prefer summer to the other seasons.
- C) the ideal season to swim is summer.
- D) people are advised to swim between 11 am and 3 pm.
- E) sunshine is vital for the small children.

74- It is stated in the passage that

- A) people must wear hat and sun glasses when they swim.
- B) babies and children should be protected against direct sunshine.
- C) it is advised to lie on the beach at noon provided that you apply sun cream.
- D) you should apply sun cream before you swim.
- E) you shouldn't wear cheap sun glasses.

75- In the passage the author states that.....

- A) perfect swimmer avoids the dangers of direct sun such as sun burns and cancer.
- B) you'd better swim in the mornings and in the afternoons where there is no sun.
- C) people can achieve a perfect tan by following sensible precautions and avoiding dangers of sun.
- D) sun creams provide vital protection from the sun's rays.
- E) people like grilling on the beaches while they are sunbathing.
